We have tried to find in the various acounts of the expedition to Wilmington some reliable or even intelligible explanation of it. We know of the five or six months' preparations, and, finally, the calling of an Admiral who had distinguised himself lu the western waters. Everything presaged victory, and it was fondly boped this last seaport of the rebellion would be closed up. The attempt has been made and has failed. The accounts, confused and mysterions as they are, ict us know To sum up briefly, some patent invention to blow up a fort five hundred yerds off, was attempted. There was a great waste of powder; an explosion dull and indistinct as have been, they cau go out themselves; prodistant thunder, that would hardly rock a chip npon the waves. The fort, of course, and chart the Constitution and laws. This was no more briared than if it had been situated at the Golden Gate, on the Pacific. Then the rest effort began. The fleet drew, in half moor, around the fort and poured a terrible concentric fire upon its walls, under cover of which our isud forces and the ma-Pond Battery, a small detached fortification, and some prisoners. So far all is well. The navy has behaved in a manner worthy of its noble prestige. But suddenly, and for reasons not yet explained, there is a heaty embarkation began at night, and in bad weather. Not being informed of the objects of this gigantic expedition, we are by ne means grat fied with such results. If it intended to fail it is a success. The attempt is not repeated. The fleet raids back to Fortress Monroe, very much as a certain French King is said to have marched up the bill and then marched Jown again. The whole story so far ende here; whether that is to be all, or more is intended, we do not know, but from appearances, the thing is ended. To what we would call attention is the ture attending this compared with the meager and mortifyleg results. There certainly tried to excente the design. must lay the fault on the leader of the plan. In Ecgiand, or even in this country, with s different officer, a prompt and severe courtmartial would follow. Gen. Butler, we suppose, reed apprehend nothing of the kind. Since writing the above, we have received Admiral Porter's official report, which coufirms all we have said about the efficiency of the fleet, though we regret to add that the army does not appear as favorably as we at first surmised. They did nothing. Fort Fisher was not even assaulted, although, as we see from Butler's letter to Admiral Porter, the skirmish line went actually within filty yards of the fort, and three or four meu actually adventured upon the parapet, capturing a horse, killing an orderly, and taking the flig from the fort. The Fisg Pond Battery, which was captured, was actually taken by the sailors, not the soldiers. Before receiving this report, we did not feel at liberty to apeak positively of where the blame lay. Ail doubt agree with Admiral Porter in his latter to Butler. We give the two letters as we find them appended to the report:

GEN. BUTLER TO ADMIRAL PORTER.

Headq'es Department of Virginia and North Carolina, Dec. 25, 1864. ADMIRAL: Upon landing the troops making a thorough reconnoiseance of Fort Fisher, both Gen. Weitz land myselfare fully of the opinion that the place could not be carried by assault, as it was left substantially unit jured as a defensive work by the navy fire. We found seventeen guns, protected by traverses, two only of which were dismonuted, bearing on the beach and covering a strip of land, the only practicable route, not wide enough for a thousand men in line of battle. Having expured Flag Pond Battery, the garrison of which, aity-five men and two commissioned officers, were taken off by the navy, we also captured Half-Moon battery, and seven officers and two hundred and elgot men of the Third North Carolina Junior Reserves, including its commander, from whom I learned that a portion of Hooke's division, consisting of Kirkland e and Hapgood's brigades, had been sent from the lines before Richmond on Tucksay last, arriving at Wilming-ton Friday night.

"Ofen. Weitz: I advanced his skirmish line within fifty yards of the fort, while the garrison was kept within their bomb-proofs by the fire of the havy, and so closely, that three or four men of the picket line ventured upon the parapet, and through the sally port of the works, captured a borse, which they brought off, killing the Orderly, who was the bearer of a dispatch from the chief of artillery of Gen. Whitting, to bring a light battery within the fort; and also brought away from the parapet the flag of the fort. This was done while the shells of the ravy were failing about the heads of the daring men who entered the work; and it was evident, as soon as the fire of the navy ceased because of the darkness, that the fort was fully manued again, and oppend with grape and capister upon our picket line.

Flucing that nothing but the operations of a regular siege, which did not come within my instructions, would reduce the fort, and in view of the string in the southwest; rendering it impossible to make further landing through the suff, I caused the troops, with their prisoners, to re-embark; and I see nothing further that can be done by the land forces. I shall, therefore, sait of the opinion that the place could not be carried by assault, as it was left substantially unir jured as a defensive work by the nav

Gen. Weitzel last night. I have ordered the largest vessels to proceed off Beanfort to fill up with summunition, to be ready for another attack in case it is decided to proceed with this matter by making other arrangements. We have not commenced firing rapidly yet, and could keep any rebels leside from moving their bead until an assenting column was within twenty yards of the works. I wish some more of your gallant fellows had followed the officer who took the jag from the parapet, and the brave fellow who brought the horse out from the fort. I think they sould have found it an easier conquest than is supposed. I do not, however, pretend to place my oninou in opposition to Gen. Welizel, whom I know to be an accomplished soldier and engineer.

This ends the farce of the assault on Fort

This ends the farce of the assault on Fort Fisher. We quit it here. It has ended as verything undertaken by that miserable Buter must end-in failure and disgrace. He nowever, is hardened against contempt, and bis owners at Washington will not drop him for this last break down.

The New York Times has become ver hilesophical sbont Kentucky. The course f the Journal, in the estimation of the editor of the Times, indicates a great desl-a great change in Kentucky. This State is going to rid itself of slavery. The Times forgivea Kentucky and apologizes for her delirquency in not taking such a course before.

Now, the course of the Journal means noth ng, except that the editor thinks he is in the line of safe precedence, and on this subject be a poor judge; none poorer in the State. The present Legislature will not touch the subject of slavery, nor will the next. The ma-jority of this State will not voluntarily plurge into revolution against our own Constitution. Kentuckians have more practical sense abonslavery than Abolition preachers, including the Jonrual, can tell them. We don't hold that a State can forfeit he right to manage her own sffairs her own way Certainly Kentneky has not forfeited that right; nor will she gratify any party, by her own act, that would rob her of this right. That slavery has anything to do with a Union of these Sates is a miserable party failacy. The only councction is made by a party the swears to bave no Union with slave States. As we have the Constitution on our side, we can only say to them, if they will not have Union of States as they are and as they siways and chay the Constitution and laws. This dominant party are not for a Union of States as the people of the States choose to have them, as they proposed at the start. They are after the abolition of slavery for party ends and to gratify party ambition. Nearly half the North and all the South are against these rines finelly succeeded in capturing the Flag party ends, and we do not believe Kentuckians will voiuntarily sacrifice their own rights and convictions to gratify any party ambition in its revolutionary purposes. The Times need not set so high a value upon the comes of the Journal. It is proverbial for being a turning machine, and remarkable for pining failing parties. It is a political Jonah, fatal to all passengers who sail lu the same ship. The Republican party may look out for equals now that the Journal has joined them.

The Arguelles esse seems to be quietly copping from all consideration. Mr. Seward justifies, and his justification, without exemination, is received as satisfactory. Yet we think the importance of the principle involved ought not to be so quietly shelved. If there had been an extradition law with Spalu and Spain had properly identified the accused and ormons preparation and useless expendi- furnished the usual evidence of his probable gniit, we would justify and applaud the act. On the contrary, none of these features appear is a fault, and a serious fault, somewhere, in the case. Arguelles is seized auturrepileither in those who planued or those who tiously under a base order from Washington, in the night, and without any pretense of an We have met with similar faffures in this order from any court, and burried out of the war, as nations in war will, but we have had country. contrary. No assumption of authority, and no vogue diclum of a Secretary, can obscure the facts or make the act appear right.

We think it unimportant, insamuch as though there have been other cases of illegal arrest, this one has the pacullarity of having been done at the dictation of a foreign power, We must add, however, that there was no demand for it as a matter of informal right by Spain. It was asked in a letter from a Spanish subordinate, sent through cur consent to Mr. Seward, and was granted without a word. If this rule is to be followed out, any petty official has but to write a note requesting it, accompanied with mere vague charges, and at once, and secretly, the order is made out and is new removed. The whole country will the person he designates is shipped off to endure his vengeauce or justice, as the case

Another peculiarity attending this case, is the plea upon which the request was made, It was, that certain persons being charged with osing accomplices with slaves, could not be permitted by law in Spaln, without the presence of Arguelles, and therefore, although there was no law here anthorizing or permitting his seizure and deportation, it was urged that it should be made. It simply said we can't free these slaves without breaking our law, therefore we request you to break your law, in order that we (Spain) may do it. As the technicalities of Spanish law wer more important to Mr. Seward than the principie of American law, the request was acceded to. If it can be done, we think the matter

hood:

In the name of the friends of trelaud of this city, who feel a deep interest in the success of your organ zatior, the difficult but pleasant duty has devolved on me to present to your truly patroits exclusty a National Irieh Flaz. A sirdicative of the esteem in which the principles of your Circle are held, and as an incentive to the members to persevere in the good and noble work so patrioiteally commenced, the fig is interwoyen with the stirring traditions of the glorious historic past.

"The trumpet blast has sounded our footmen to array,
The village steed has bounded impatient for the fray;
The Green Flag is unfolded while rose the cry of joy-Heaven speed dear Ireland's Banner to-day at Fontenoy,"

The Irish flag is an embodiment of the holy spirations, pairiotic emotions and liberty oving sentiments of the Irlsh people. The lag of Ireland's emblematic of the Nation ith, handed down through centuries ongs and oppression—a faith imparted to wrongs and oppression—a faith imparted to on ace from smid the lightnings of the battle leld as well as from amid the respiendent half that environed the scaffold-

Though baffled oft, is ever won."

And, in this connection, it is but natural that we should exprese our hearty approval and profound interest for the prosperity and and-cess of your society—a society having in view the independence of our native land, poor, oppressed, but ever dear old Ireland: a land ricb in historic memories and resplendent with the giories of the past; a land famons for her poets, orators, statesmen and soldiers, and especially the long roll of her patriots, whose deeds are linked with song and story; and, in speaking of those illustrious mer, bow consoling it is to reflect that your organization is molided after the principles for which Wolfe Tone labored and Robert Emmett anfired. One of Ireland's patriots, Robert Emmett, remarked that his principles were immortal, and that other men, at some future day, would esponse bis cause. The existence of the Fenlau organization to day vindicates the trath of the aspiration at the martyred patriot hero, Emmett, and in this view we tender you the first for the Lonisville Circle of the Fenlau Brotherhood, fully assured that its honor will never be suilled or its bright revown ever transhed by that patriotic esociation. May the lesson it teaches be never forgotten, and may the glorious traditions, histeric memories and enkinding recollections interwoven with its history be treasured up as incentives to persevers and succeed.

Our mission is closed. I have only to present you with the flag, and fervently breather a prayer that the day may be near at hand when the bauner of green unturled will wave over a united, free and independent peoply. One of Ireland's patriots, Robert Emmett

The vocal and instrumental concert at Guerrillas on the Lower Ohio-Boats Fired Into. Since the Federal troops have been ramov

> d from the banks of the Lower Ohlo, the guerrillas are again very tremblesome along that aircam, and navigation is rather hazardona. On Tuesday morning the Mismi, from St. Louis, landed at Owensboro and took en board the Federal troops stationed there, who were brought to this city. Almost as soon as the Miami left there a considerable force of rebel troops under Walker Taylor entered the town and took pessession of it. In the afternoon as the Morning Star came up, and before she had reached the place, the rebels opened upon her with musketry, and the officers of the boat not relishing such a warm reception, at once took to the Indiana shore and got out of rarge of the game of the rebels, who continued to fire, but without effect. It is but a short time since the Morning Star was captured and robbed by this same band, and her officers were not snxions of having another visit from them, and so came on up without landing. About 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the Kate Robinson passed the asme place, and while the passengers were quietly sittingist the dinner table relishing their meal they were startled by the reports of muskets and balls whizzing through the boat. For a moment all was consternation on board and every one could be seen running for some place of will not regret that you ever poid a visit to the safety. A number of she's struck the boat, but fortunately no one was hurt. When the firing commenced the boat was at once headed for the Indians shore and passed up without any further damage. On the morning of the same day a fitboat floating down the river was fired upon, but the men kept hid until she passed, and no one was hurt. The Melnotte, from Nashville, which boat passed up some two hours in advance of the Kate Robincon, was not interfered with. The force at Owensboro is variously estimated at from one hundred to five hundred mounted men. We learn from passengers who came up on the boats that the gnerrillas are also very tronblesome at Stephensport, Cloverport and Hawesville. They also report that there are prowling gangs all slong the river from the nouth of Salt river down.

We learn that the steamer Mercury, which eft New Albany on Mouday, was fired into by the guerrillas at Brandenburg that day. The citizens of the town had told the officers of the bost that If they would land they would not be molested by the guerriflas. As the hoat tonched the shore, some Federal soldiers on the Mercuiy caught a glimpse of the were attracted by two remarkably well painted guerrillas, and fired at them. A spirited skirmish enauce, and the guerrillas were driven off. We did not learn that any of the soldiers were hurt. The cook of the Mercury was wonnded in the fight.

The piece will be repeated to-night and every night during the week, and perons who have not had the pleasure of seeing the beautiful scenery should not fall to attend.

LOUISVILLE THEATER.—The great Vesival whose fame is known throughout the country, will commence an engagement at this theater to-night, appearing in her great character of Games, in the play of that name.

MASONIO TEMPLE .- Arlington, the inimitable delineator of negro character, was "at home" last night. His colleagues were equally so in their peveral roles. The house was filled with a very fashionable and appreciative audience, all of whom expressed their delight upon witnessing the pernances. All their songs -scuilmental and ic-were well sung, and the music was of a high order. If any one cau go and spend an evening in Arlington's presence without coming away "tickied to death," we advise him to go and huy himself a coffin, jump into it, and leave this vale of tears. Go and see them to-night, and you will have a gay time.

VARIETIES .- This neat, new and popular place of musement continues to be an attractive place to ight added new laure's to heir fame by their per-presences. Go to night and see them, and you arieties, where the Ryan & Calhoun mine traisare holding forth.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 4. There was no gacrum in the House of Rep. resentatives, and the Hall was given up to the Union State Convention, which is largely at sended. Wm. C. Goodios, of Favelte, was made President, and John T. Scott, of Frank-

The morning session was consumed in the appointment of committees and reading a series of resolutious, all of which were reterred vilhout debate to standing committees. Among the delegates were several gentlenen who have heretofore acted with the con ervative party. The Convention did not open with prayer.

Prentice's captured letters are distribuicd roadcast here in bandbill form, and they crete quite a gengation. Green Clay Smith and R. F. Baird addressd the Convention this afternoon. Smith pre dicted that the negroes would in time be sent o occupy Mexico, and Baird prophesied the erly extinction of slavery, not only in the United States, but in Cuba and Brazil. Green Adams defended Lincoin's ad ministration, and advecated immediate State mancipation.

The Convention has a night session. NEW YORK, Jon. 4.

The Richmord Septinel, commenting on the re-embarkation of Butler's troops says they should not have been driven off so soon after effecting a louding. Five brigades is as tonishing when we consider the force opposed Othem.
The Dispatch says it seemed hardly possible that a force so enormous should be beaten off and discomfited by a garrison of a few hundred men, good part raw militia, we were ad been made, whether the whole demonstra ilon was not a reconvolsared or faint, preliminary to a grand more against the real object in another piece, and says never again will the Wilmington forts be so slimity garrisoned.

The Dispatch says the repulse of the Willimington expedition had a most cheering effect on the spirits of the people. During the first two day's work there was a very decided apprehension in the community that Wilmington, our lest seaport would succomb to the immerse force sent against 1, and the immediate effect was speed disappeared from the market, the enemy having expended their utracest strength or Fort Fisher and outpost of Wilmington and disastrously beaten, it against the few hayers. on was not a reconvolsares or faint, prelim

Wilmington, the themp's attack on the first day lasted five hours and the second day seven hours, firing over 20,000 shots from fifty kinds of vessels. The Confederates responded with 602 shots on the first day and 600 on the second. Our loss is three killed and fifty-five weunded. The ground in front is covered with shells and form into deep pits. Two guns in the fort burst; two dismounted by ourselves and two by the enemy's fir, yet the fort is undust. The Whig says; Fortune has been setting steadily against as for come months, but it is to be hoped that the turning point has been reached.

The Sent'net of the 30th ult, says: Sherman

The Sentinel of the 30th ult. says: Sherman is still at Savanush, and no movement this side of the river had taken place since the eracuation of Savanush. It is pickable that Sherman will rest his men belore he moves on Argusts, or whatever point he thinks best.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4. The Richmond Sentinel continues a very important editorial believed to be from Jeff Davis. Secretary Saward had sent litto all oreign Ministers as showing the complete exhaustion of the rebellion, and consequently the rebels are no longer entitled to the outsideration of belligerents it, says;

Our late successes have done much toward preparing our people for extreme saydiffees if prenaring our people for extreme escribers if subjursted. The question is simply whether we shall give for our own use or whether the Yankees shall take for theirs. It would be Yankees shall take for theirs. It would be more glorious to devote our means to success then lose them as spoils to the enemy. Our situation, stripped our property, but masters of our government would be initiality better than if despoiled by the enemy, and wearing his bonds of subjugation is a horror that empraces sli other terrors. Troublons times are upon us; great exigencies surround us, and we need all our strength and all our wisdom. Let there be a confessore with our wise mea; let there be a clist of investigation of our swants, and then let all obstacles to our employment, all our recourses be removed. So long as we have a man or a dollar let the call for them be honored. It will be adding diagrate to our memory if we were overcome without exhonored. It will be adding diagrase to our memory if we were overcome without exhausting our resources in defense of the government. It determines that if it needs our lands, houses, horses, thoney, or ourselves, it must have them. If Providence condemns nate a master, let it not be a Yankee. Of all the people on earth, we have most reason to loathe and deride them. Any terms with any other people would be preferable to subjurgation by them. If statesmapship can't save us it can cur misery, by saving us from the Yankees. Our people would infinitely prefer favorable alliance with Europeau nations.

The Bichmond Enquirer, after commenting on the above, says if it be necessary to convince the world that we are fighting for self-government of whites, then we should liberate the negroes; and if that liberation should secure our recognition, and the guarantee of Procland and France to our independence we secure our recognition, and the guarantee of Ergland and France to our Independence, we believe the yeople of these States would not hesitate to make the sacrifice. The conse-vuences of euwenlepation would fall on the negro. The act would be one of recessity, egro. The act would be one of accessity, of choice, taken against our jndgement and onvictions. But to save us from the horrors of a prolonged war, and difgrace, ruin and destruction, involved in the success of our en-

"Our city contains twenty thousand lahabitants, without fedge, cut of from all connection without refuge, cut of from all connection with the country. The heart sickens at the sight. He saw but one course to pursue. It is all they all felt greatly indebted to Gen. Genry, commander of the city, for the course he had pursued."

A blockade runner with an assorted cargo came up near the city on the 29th, unaware that the city had changed hands on the 25th. A new marsh battery was erected by Foster's forces and a train of cars stopped by it. A portion of Hardee's forces had passed the point by marching around on an old wagon road. The work of clearing the river of obstractions is going on, and one of our monitors had arrived up at Savannarh.

"PICCIOLA."

It was a sergeant old and gray,
Well singed and bronzed from siege and pillage.
Went tramping in an army's wake,
Along the turnpike of the village.

For days and nights the winding host Had through the little place been marching, And ever load the rustles cheered. Till every throat was hoarse and parching.

The Squire and farmer, maid and dame, All took the sight's electric stirring. And hats were waved and staves were sung, And kerchiefe white were countless whirring.

They only saw a galiant show
Of heroes stalwart under banners,
And in the flere, heroic glow.
'Twas theirs to yield but wild hozannas.

The sergeant heard the shrill hurrahs, Where he, behind, in step was keeplin But glancing down beside the road, He saw a little maid sit weeping. "And how is this?" he gruffly eaid-A moment pansing to regard her Why weepest thou, my little chil?"
And then she only cried the harder.

"And how ie thie, my little chit!" The sturdy trooper straight repeated. "When all the village cheered us on,
That you in tears apart are scated?"

"We march two handred thonsand strong, And that's a sight, my baby beauty, To quicken silence into song And glorify the soldier's duty."

"It's very, very grand, I know,"

The little maid gave soft replying;
"And father, mother, brother, too,
All say 'hurrah' while I am crying;

"But think—0, Mr. Soldier, think, How many little sisters" brothers Are going all away to fight And may be killed, as well as others."

"Why, bless thee, child," the sengeant said, His brawny hand her curls caressing, "Is left for little one like thee To find that war's not all a blessing."

And "bless tham!" once again he cried:
Then cleaved his throat and looked indigmant.
And marched away with wrinkled brows,
To stop the struggling tear benigmant.

And still the ringing shouls went up From doorway, thatch and fields of tillage; The pail behind the standard seen By one alone of all the village.

The oak and cedar bend and writhe
When roars the wind through gap and braken;
But 'tis the tenderest reed of all
That tumbles first when earth is shaken.

If non-conducting clothing is desi-distance is measured by feel, as in the giraffe, or by inches, as in the mole. The outer surface in man is made of small scales which are continually washing and rubbing off, and as continually reprodu-cing; in this scaly surface a likeness to the fish may be seen. In anatomical structure a great similarity to man is found in the hog, and in general appearance, size and location, the Internal organs of the latter may be considered a copy of the former. The human brain is, however, an exception, being larger; the largest, in fact, found in the animal kingdom in proportion to the size of the body to which it belongs as a

The human integument is double; the outer layer is termed the cuticle, the inner tered. It is without feeling, has few points of interest, and may be considered as a can hardly insert a needle anywhere on the body without drawing blood and feeling pain. The sensitiveness of the skin is a benefactor. early taught the child by the mother's hand, and the master's ferule often keeps up the recollection. The true skin serves as a soil for the growth of the hairs, near the roots of which are oil glands which give the hairs a glossy coating by their se-cretion. The hairs are much like corn stalks, with a hard exterior and pithy inthe latter. If this coloring matter is deposited through loss of vigor in the secre-tory functions, grayness supervenes: and if the roots of the hair fail in their funcwholly, baldness comes on. Grayness arises by degrees generally, but eases are known where the hair of the head has been blanched completely in a single night or other space of time nearly as limited, and owing to mental anxiety generally. The case of Captain West, form-erly of the steamer Atlantic, has been stated as one occasioned by the care and labor inoident to a storm at sea, when all on board the vessel expected for hours to go to Two others came under my nothe bottom. I wo others came under my no-tica in New York city. Preparations for coloring the hair and obviating grayness in that way often contain milk of sulphur and sugar of lead, sometimes bay oil, a resinous oil which, when cut by alchohol, forms bay rum. This oil is said to promote a dark color in the hair if used by itsalf. Baldness is difficult to overcome often, especially in the aged, though there are preparations recommended for removing it, which, 'tis said, will renew the hair shingle will make a shoe brush of it in venty four hours.

Innumerable tubes pass through the skin, by means of which much of the fluids taken into the body is exercised massive. into the body is excreted, passing away ordinarily as insensible perspiration, but save on frosty mornings, but as much mases sway through the skin as through the lungs. Rubber clothing tends to prevent this impervious substance becomes damp. Overshoes make the feet sweat, as it is said, for this reason. Flannel, on the other hand, from its porons nature absorbs readnext the aurface as the rubber is objectionstantly passing away through the skin, holds a small quantity of organic matter in solution, estimated at from one to two cunces per week. It is said to be albumen (or white of egg) "in a state of incipient decomposition." Albumen is the basis of all animal organized substances. If this excretion could be stopped wholly and at once, eay by a varnish applied to the skin, the result would doubtless be soon of eroup, tuburcle and consumption, or catarrh, the albumenous deposit in the urine or chronic diarrhes. The nails, warts and corns, are all growths

the under surface of the cuticle and is derived from the iron in the blood. Light, but more particularly a continuous elevated temperature darkens the hue of the skin and determines the color. The action of light in giving color to plants is well known. Het latitudes make dark skins, while cold ones bleach them. Heat and excessive perspiration on the scalp makes the color are allowed and very jolly parsons in light curi to a greater or less degree in all. induced by civilination, would doubt-less in time make of the African another person, without any admixture of foreign blood; while there is a tendency in man, generally, to unity, rather than diversity under the same conditions and appliances. The subject of the unity of the race cannot, however, be treated of to any extent in

To understand fully the value of clothing and materials therefor, it should be na-derstood that the vigor or heat of the system is electrical in its nature, and govered by the same laws which control the electrici-ty of the natural world. Whatever substances, aerial or material, which come in contact with the external surface of the body, or of the internal lining of the lungs, and are good electric conductors, depress the vital powers by abstracting the heat of the body, and in proportion as the latter is lessened is the system laid open to at-tacks of disease. The person who lies down in a cold bed warms the bed at the expense of his own heat; if a snow bank be substituted for the bed, death might occur if the experiment was sufficiently pro-longed. The boy who bathes in the river is warming the water to his injury often; the harm will depend much on the amount of time spent in the water and the normal vigor of the constitution which is to honor the draft. Cold water bathing, more than is demanded by cleanliness, is injurious rather than otherwise, as tending to chill the surface and interfere with the healthy performance of its functions

The immediate clothing of the surface of the body should be, a non-conductor; silk and woolen are the best. The substitution of cotton for those so generally in tution of cotton for those so generally in this latitude has proved an unmitigated curse, for the deadening effect upon the skin by its conducting properties has tended to throw inwardly those exerstions which should pass outwardly. In hot climates the action of the surface is slimulated by the atmosphere, but in the temperate zones the skin needs a proper protection, otherwise the inner surface of the body, which is but a continuation of the outer, must do the work of the latter. One of the first symtoms of consumption is a dead, pearly whiteness of the countenance, the very opposite of health. Chronic diarrhea, that scourge of the hospital, brought on by wet clothes and sleeping on the ground, practices unavoidable in the soldier, but none the less deadly, may be easily explained on this theory. In no one place can the "ounce of prevention" be so profitably applied as to the care of the outside in such

Non-conductors should be worn in auxmer as well as in winter. The coolest dress a person could wear in summer would be one of woolen as tight as the skin; not tighter than that, as one fellow complained is pants were, for he said he could sit down in his skin without splitting it, but he couldn't in his pants. Laborers at forges and furnaces wear woolen shirts, which absorb the perspiration readily and the fish. Another distinctive feature of allow it to evaporate, which process cools the mammalia is this: Their heads are all the surface, while cotton will not only united to their bodies by a vertebral colrable in the working hours, much more so is it proper when the body reposes passively. ople take cold much more easily when asleep than awake, and hence woolen sheets and blankets are worth adoption as bedding to the exclusion of cotton; and it quite possible that a silk or woolen cap might be of signal service in preventing baldness and grayness, as such an article is recommended to those who are sufferers from neuralgia in the head.

The worth of the physical exercise as a means in keeping the skin in a healthy condition can hardly be overrated. It gives a healthy hue to the cheeks and vigr to the excreting functious generally It is not necessary or advisable to exercise violently, and the severer movements of the true skin. The former may be raised the gymnasium and the boat race, draw-by a blister, which is a life process, as ing powerfully on both muscular and ner-dead flesh may be burned but never blis-vous systems, are entirely unnecessary if not positively injurious so far as mere exercise for health is concerned. There is no of interest, and may be considered as a case for nearly is concerned. There is no shield simply for the true skin underneath.

The latter is so abundantly supplied with even such as gardening, sawing of wood, minute nerves and blood vessels that we shoveling of snow, or even walking, and the vonth who engages in such labors as will aid others as well as himself is doubly a benefactor. The effect of temperature and exercise, or the want of it combined, is well shown in the monkey. In his native woods, surrounded by a tropical heat, life is constant motion with him. Brought north and caged, with limited opportunities for movement, he dies with consumption, and foul air gets the curse, while a proper un-derstanding of the action of the external ited in surface under the two conditions would suggest quite a different epitaph

(From the New York World, $1st.) Peep into the Old Capitol Prison-Treatment of an Old Gentleman who was Robbed and Arrested while at Washington to Visit his Son in the Army.

Mr. Bennet C. Fowler, of Fairhaven, Connecticut, who has just been released from the Old Capitol Prison at Washington, called at this office yesterday, and made a brief statement of his case as follows: Last fall he left his home to travel for the benefit of his health, which was very poor, and to ascertain in regard to his so was serving in the Union army. On his arrival at Washington for that purpose he put up at the Mitchell House. That night, after he had retired to his room, three msn, not in uniform, broke into his room, and declaring that they were United States de-tectives, pretended to arrest him. The first question they asked was, "how much money have you?" He told them the amount of his money, and they immediately proceeded to-steal some one hundred and thirty odd dollars. Two of them then left, and the remaining one, without any explanation, exhibition of warrant of any kind, or allega-tion of charges, took him to the Old Capitol Prison, at Washington, and put him into a cell. Mr. Fowler's baggage was also rob-bed, and not even a shirt was left him. Days and weeks passed, and Mr. Fowler's health, already delicate, declined rapidly. The room swarmed with loathsome vermin, which seemed to abound in every thread of he miserable old blankets that were given him for a bed. The food he spoke of as most horrible. Breakfast consisted of a cup of muddy slush called coffes, but hard. fit to threw in the gutter, two or three ittle cakes of hard tack, and a small piece of still-fed port that would oftentimes fall in pieces from its own weight when taken up with the fingers. Dinner was composed of what they called beansoup and a piece of best hardly the size of three fingers. Supper was often a piece of bread and coffee sometimes a piece of hard tack with mag-gots crawling in it. Neither knife, fork nor spoon was ever allowed. When any one of the prisoners looked out of the windows, they were told to put their heads back or they would be fired at. Last Thursday, through the influence of some friends and a member of Congress, Mr. Fowler was released. An officer came to the prison with an unconditional release from Asistant Secretary Dana. No questions were asked of him, nor was the oath of allegiance tendered, nor the money returned which had been stolen, and he is entirely ignorant of any charges against him, or any reasons why has should have been arrested. He never heard any reason given. Hs comes from the prison with shattered health; "for," said he, almost with the simplicity of second childhood, "that horrible place has almost killed me." Such were the adventures of an old man. going to the capital of the United States to seek information of his son in the Union army. The World was not allowed to be read by the prisoners, but the Washington Chronicle and papers of that stamp, that fitted well the condition of the prison, were allowed to circulate freely. Mr. Fowler stated that Colonel Wood, the Superintendent, seemed courteous and kindly disposed, and he believed that the condition of the prison must have been the fault of some one elss, as he thinks Colonel Wood a most generous and noble man.

"I Ha'n't a Mother Like the Rest." The weather had been unusually mild for wo or three days befora Christmas, so that the ice of the big pond was rather rotten; but daring Harry thought he could brave it; it would be a pity to spoil the fun now, and so many admiring eyes fixed upon him, too! He made a bold dash—his little figure, upright and graceful, was balanced upon the ice. Then there was a crash! the dangerous cake gave way; and with a loud cry liarry fell, amid the rush of ice and

The group at the window seemed for a moment paralyzed with horror. Then there was a scattering for the pond, and a screaming and crying from one and all. "He's ing and crying from ons and all. "He's under the water!-father! father! Harry's going under the ice!" Every particle of color had gone from Farmer May's face; he trembled in every limb, and threw up his hands wildly. His strength seemed to have ebbed away in the tide of gricf.

"O, help me!" he cried. "My boy-my boy! and I can't swim!" "But I can! shouted a voice, brave and clear as an angel's, almost; "I can swim, and l'll save him!" and dashing past weeping Mother May, Joseph Craig plunged headlong into the freezing water, swimming for dear life. llow they watched him, breathless and excited, their hearts hanging by a thread, as it were! How they shuddered when they saw him grasp once, twice, at a dark object under the water, and then rise, his face gashed and bleeding from contact with the agly ice corners. He was some way ou ow, and made a third dive; then there was a faint hurrah, and, breasting the ice, he just managed to swim to the bank, with one arm holding np poor llarry. "My child! my boy!—thank God;" cried the happy parent, folding him in his arms. They bore him to the roaring fire in the silting-room, and rubbed him until he opened his eyes and smiled. Very soon he was able to sit up, and laugh and talk naturally And where was Joseph all this time? Sit-ting on the kitchen floor, squeezing his wet clothes and rubbing the great painful gashes in his arms and face, from which the blood was still streaming.

"Joseph!" He listened; it was Farmer May's voice, unusually soft and tender. The poor apprentice lad shook like a leaf before he was aware a strong arm came round behind him, lifting him from the floor. lie found himself, as if by magio, sitting beside Harry, and Harry's bright head resting on his bosom, with great tears roll-ing down the grateful boy's cheeks. "If there's anything you wish for now, Joseph," said the farmer, huskily, "anything you'd like to have, just name it, my boy. You have saved us many a year of sorrow, and given us cause to remember this Christmas before all others. speak out, my boy." How could he speak when he felt so happy? Twice he tried to gulp down the sobs rising in his throat—sobs of joy they were. "Only be kind to me, sir," he gasped out at length; "only drop a kind word now and then, for I ha'n't any mother like the rest."

How was it now with Farmer May? He felt all at once what great lack there had been in his otherwise kindly heart. quite broke him down, that appeal to his better nature; so he leaned on Mother May's shoulder, and sobbed aloud. Joseph May's shoulder, and sobbed aloud. Joseph astas if in a dream; his beautiful Christmas had come at last—no more hunger and thirsting of spirit now. How the joyous red sparks of fire-light ran up the white wall, the whole room shining! Harry squezing him tightly with one arm, and Tiny, her checks flushed with crying, thrusting her pretty doll into his lap, whispering. ing her pretty doll into his lap, whispering, "There, there! keep it, Joseph. I don't wan't it, indeed, and double-deed, I don't;" and then running away in the corner, her face turned to the wall, lest by looking sack she might repent the immense sacri fice.

Well-well, tears cannot always last, and very soon the May family were bright learn the happiest of and smiling again, Joseph the happiest of all. And when the Chistmas dinner was set on, and all the friends were gathered abont it, they made a place for Joe among the children; and Mother May could not heap hie plate enough with the good things and the poor lad felt as if he was more ready to cry than to laugh, at all the kindly words which every one had for him. Impressing Times.

The times are quite warlise, and even our losses But as Father Abraham the edict expressed.
And caused all your takes to look quite forlorn,
Your min's like your bers, are duly impressed.
Tout the bills will be small for bay, ouls and corn. And since the expense of keeping your stable. Has been saved by the aug.c. who your horses in Freezed.
You can now well afford to set a good table
And help to feed those who are poor and distressed. 'This impressive to know that the good thlogs abound— That greenbacts are pleniy and Christm's is near; And, trough you've no herse, the place can be found Which has furnished the best sables for many a year;

A place where your wants over all be sup-lied, And is matters not if your wants are quite pressi But to impress for your wants an objection's loop And greenbacks, not youthers, the bergain attes And insprease on reveal s. and well its may too.
